MONTHLY NEWSLETTER - SEPTEMBER 2019

PRINCIPAL'S MESSAGE

Dear Parents,

Welcome back to school!

The last month has seen nothing but endless stories of their adventures through their holidays, from our little ones. It is indeed a great pleasure to have them back after a lull of two long months. What is really interesting about these conversations with them, after they are back from a holiday, is that most of them are excited to share the different experiences that they have had as against a few who are excited about the different toys or materialistic things that they had acquired during that period.

It is very true that what could take a week to learn within the confines of 4 walls, can take only a few moments when actually experienced. So dear parents, as an unknown author has very rightly said, 'Fill your life with experiences not things. Have stories to tell not stuff to show', let us fill their days with experiences that take them to different realms of learning. You never know what each experience holds for our little ones. So let's open up a whole new world to our children, and give them those beautiful moments that they can hold on to forever.

And now over to them to share the month that was!

Looking ahead...

With best regards,

Rashmi Nagendra

Principal, Ambassador Kindergarten

EDITOR'S NOTE

Hello and welcome back to a new prospective term2! Combatting back to school blues, we thought, could have been a challenge but whoa...our students made the return so easy and enjoyable!! For them nothing is mundane.... each day seems a new one!! The month was paced up with loads of holiday experiences, catching up with friends, enriching lessons while an array of events provided a holistic development to our little ones!!

Welcome back to School!!

WOW MOMENT

Teaching kids to count is fine, but teaching them what counts is best” – Bob Talbert

I love being a teacher. I love seeing little faces light up with a smile when they open the door of the classroom every morning. I love it when all of a sudden I am hugged and I look at a child smiling at me telling me they love me. I love listening to them when they share their stories about what they did over the weekend!

I would like to share this incident - This teacher’s day when I reached home and checked my messages I saw a voice message from an unknown number from Bahrain. When I heard the message I was a bit surprised, at first I didn’t know which student of mine had got hold of my number. I apologized and asked if I could know the name but she kept telling me to guess her name. After too much of thinking I said, “Is it Saisha?” and the child sends another excited message saying “You remember me –I love you and miss you so much ma’am.” I was emotional for a while and realized that my child still remembers me after many years of teaching and now that she has moved to Bahrain, is in grade 6, she still misses me and remembers me – as I was her first Kindergarten teacher.

The personal relationship I build with each child is the foundation that allows the learning to occur.

That’s the achievement for me - Being a kindergarten teacher I see the difference that I make in my student’s lives, every single day.

I believe our job as teachers or parents is to prepare the child for the path, not the path for the child.

WOW MOMENT

As we came to the end of exploration of materials and their properties, it was time to start applying our understanding to construct different structures.

It was an absolute treat to see our little ones collaborate to plan, research, design, list materials required for their project, build, test and finally evaluate their learning.

Two days were full of surprises. There was cooperation, interaction, discussion, resilience, desire to fight back and excitement after they achieved a common goal.

The children had to rebuild their model 3 times before they succeeded. And we knew that our little ones had grown up to shoulder responsibilities and were ready to face the challenges of the real world.
